New Batting Order. At the last minute George Smith was obliged to change his battaing order, and what an awful looking one it was when he got through with it. Lauder, who has a hole in his hand big enough to hold a nickel, had to play in right field, and Bowerman had to play first. O'Hagan was hit so hard on the wrist in Pittsburg that he could not play, so Jack Dunn gained the position of honor on the list. Yeager had to catch and with such changes it was hard to from the letter of apology sent by William Jennings Bryan to the Tilden Club, of this city, for his public announcement that he had received no invitation to the club-house opening, when Grover Cleveland and David B. honor on the list. Yeager had to catch and with such changes it was hard to see before the game where the Glants had a chance of winning.

First Inning.

Brodie's fly was taken by Dobbs arter a hard run. Lauder bunted and the rolling ball hit him on the way to first and he was out. Jones's liner was for two bases, but he got no further, for Dunn's bounce in front of the plate was sent to first by Peitz. No runs.—Smith did the right thing with Dobbs's roller. Brodie made a dash and sot Hoy's lofty hit. Beckley died by the same route as did Dobbs. No runs.

Second Inning.

Corcoran after a fine stop got the ball to first ahead of Smith. Bowerman died in the same way. Yeager spanked the ball over short for a base, but Wagner's knock to Stefafeldt was George's undoing at second. No runs.

Lawford got a walk. Pettz laced the ball to centre for half the circuit of bases and Crawford cantered home. Bowerman made a very superior catch for Magoon's foul fig. Jones was sure of Steinfeldt's high fly, and although it dropped into his hands, he could not hold it. The result was that Pettz got home. Currie's roller to Smith was Steinfeldt's finish at second. Two runs.
